It started with a request for a floating, circular, fireside lounge. But designer Ryan Hughes took his client's idea and ran with it, creating an imaginative, contemporary outdoor space best described in one word:

Wow! The epicenter of the 5,000 sq. ft. project is a pool with the aforementioned circular fire patio. Surrounding the pool is a series of other equally striking and spectacular Outdoor Rooms.

In one, a dramatic outdoor entertainment lounge features a stone veneer and glass-tiled, audio-visual wall covered with four 50-in. televisions. This room flows to an adjacent hearth area with a large, linear gas fireplace and contemporary furniture that doubles as artwork.

A dining and bar area with modern seating and sleek, stainless-steel outdoor kitchen, is warmed with textural elements and natural Ipe hardwoods. Several additional lounging and deck areas are built around a spa, custom fire sculptures, water features, or other unique architectural elements. While the entire space is visually stimulating and complex, the use of a soothing, neutral color palette throughout creates a calming cohesiveness that unifies this extraordinary entertainment center.
